Antique 19th Century Pine Secretary with Hidden Compartment, Denmark, circa 1840

This truly lovely mid 19th century secretary becomes a showcase thanks to the beauty of the natural pine, waxed to bring out the warmth of the wood and attractive concave doors. There are countless drawers for organization, including a hidden compartment which was often a design element in secretaries of the time. Check out the detailed photos to see that when opened, an entire section can be pulled out revealing space hidden to the eye. This secretary has been restored and waxed, it is solid, stable and ready to be used and enjoyed.
