Antique Baroque Farm Table With Drawer

This impressive baroque farm table creates a strong presence after 200 years of use. The aged finish has an amazing patina due to the wear through the years, revealing layers of paint highly distressed over generations revealing the natural wood below(see close up of top for best understanding). Note the distinctive baroque legs, dovetail joints, wood pegs used as nails and metal reinforced ends. There is expected age related separation in the top planks, dings and scratches which in no way diminish the look or function of the table and are merely a reflection of its age and character. This handsome table has been restored and waxed, it is strong and ready to be used as a console, writing desk, entry way or library table (with single drawer). Floor to skirt height: 21.25"
